1 Introduction

Integrity is one of VVOB's five core values. Integrity is a priority in our cooperation with each other, partners, and donors. We do what is right, even when it is difficult.

VVOB commits to an organisation-wide culture of integrity in which we all have a responsibility and a voice, and where we can count on the support and help of VVOB when dealing with integrity issues and ethical dilemmas:

Responsibility

All of us play a critical role in ensuring that VVOB is a great work environment and in protecting our culture, our quality of work, and our reputation;

A voice

When you believe something is not right, you can speak up and share your concerns, knowing that VVOB wants to hear those concerns and will not tolerate any reprisals against you;

Help

If you are unsure of what to do in a situation, you have support and guidance available in terms of people, policies, processes and trainings.

Sound leadership fosters this ethical environment and culture of our organisation, allowing the long-term public interest to prevail over short-term individual interests. We are consistent and reliable, both as an organisation and as individuals, and we accept responsibility for our actions.

This document describes the principles of our integrity policy, including our codes of conduct and internal structure, support and proceedings to deal with integrity dilemmas and violations of our codes of conduct, in order to foster an organisation-wide culture of integrity.

This integrity policy applies to all VVOB staff, board members, interns and volunteers.

Integrity Charter Belgian Development Cooperation Sector

In 2018, the Belgian minister of Development Cooperation invited the Belgian development actors to reconfirm their commitment to integrity by signing a charter. VVOB signed this 'Integrity Charter' on May 28, 2018. The charter contains important basic principles on how the complying organisations should work on maintaining their integrity. This includes having an ethical code, organising courses on integrity, introducing a contact line for integrity violations and communicating on these violations externally once per year. The integrity charter emphasises the importance of both financial as well as moral integrity.

VVOB commits to the Integrity Charter and to an organisation-wide culture of integrity, and provides the necessary support, help, training, tools and procedures to achieve this.

VVOB's Codes of Conduct

3.1 Purpose

VVOB is committed to maintaining the highest degree of ethical conduct amongst all individuals who are involved in implementing VVOB projects and programmes. Therefore, we have developed Codes of Conduct to detail VVOB's expectations of behaviour in key areas. We differentiate between three Codes of conduct:

1. VVOB's General Code of Conduct

2. Code of conduct VVOB's Child protection policy

3. Code of conduct VVOB's Youth protection policy

The purpose of these Codes of Conduct is to set out the conduct expected of individuals whilst under contract with VVOB, and is an integral part of all employment contracts and service contracts. The Codes are applicable at all times, and breaches of the Codes of Conduct are grounds for disciplinary sanctions, up to and including dismissal.

Whilst recognising that local laws and cultures differ considerably from one country to another, VVOB is an international organisation. Therefore, VVOB's Codes of Conduct are developed based on international and UN standards. Individuals working with VVOB are expected to uphold local laws wherever they operate, except where the Codes of Conduct are more stringent, in which case the Codes apply.

VVOB's Codes of Conduct are not intended to be exhaustive. Rather, they serve to remind individuals working with VVOB of the basic principles of ethical behaviour and relevant standards of conduct that should guide their thoughts, decisions and actions in responding to the wide range of situations and challenges they might be confronted with during their employment or services with VVOB.

VVOB takes appropriate action to ensure that the content and understanding of the principles of the Codes of Conduct and the procedures for grievance handling and whistleblowing are communicated to all individuals who are involved in implementing VVOB projects and programmes.

3.2 Scope

These Codes of Conduct apply to VVOB personnel, board members, volunteers, interns and to all other individuals who are involved in carrying out VVOB's projects and programmes. These include but are not limited to: contractors, sub-contractors, (including their employees, volunteers, directors and officers and any other personnel), as well as any consultants or affiliates that may work with such contractors or subcontractors, as applicable.

3.3 VVOB's General Code of Conduct

3.3.1 Integrity

We expect all individuals who are involved in implementing VVOB projects and programmes to behave in accordance with ethical principles, and act in good faith, honesty and fairness. Therefore, we must:

- Respect national and local laws;
- Never engage in any level of physical or verbal violence or threat of violence;
- Not divulge any confidential information relating to colleagues, work-related matters or any sensitive information unless legally required to do so;
- Ensure that their conduct does not bring VVOB into disrepute and does not impact on or undermine the individual's ability to undertake the role for which he or she is employed;
- Report suspected wrongdoing or breaches of VVOB's ethical principles, rules, regulations or policies.

3.3.2 Respect for people, policies and planet

We expect all individuals who are involved in implementing VVOB projects and programmes to demonstrate respect for the dignity, value, equality, diversity and privacy of all persons, and demonstrate respect for policies and planet. We strongly believe that diversity is a major asset for our organisation. Therefore, we must:

- Respect and value differences and treat all people fairly and with dignity and courtesy;
- Consider the sensitivities of people's customs, habits and religious beliefs and avoid any behaviour that is not appropriate in a particular cultural context.
- Never engage in any form of discriminatory or offending behaviour based on a person's race, skin colour, ancestry, national or ethnic origin, nationality, gender, sexual orientation, marital status, age, wealth, religious, non-religious, political or philosophical beliefs, organisational membership, current or future health status or disability;
- Abstain from and actively discourage all forms of harassment, including verbal, nonverbal, written or physical abuse;
- Never engage in abusive or exploitative conduct;
- Never carry weapons during working hours;
- Never engage in any commercially exploitative activities with children or vulnerable adults including child labour or trafficking;

- Never engage in sexual activity with children (persons under the age of 18). Mistaken belief in the age of a child is not a defence;
- Never exchange money, employment, goods or services for sex, including sexual favours or other forms of humiliating, degrading or exploitative behaviour, with vulnerable persons or beneficiaries of our programme interventions;
- Encourage and maintain a work environment characterised by good working relations;
- Adhere to all legal and organisational health and safety requirements in force and behave in a manner such as to avoid any unnecessary risk to the safety, health and welfare of yourself and others;
- Respect local, national and international partners and policies.
- Strive to minimise the environmental impact of our operations and include the environment as a cross-cutting theme in our interventions.

3.3.3 Quality and commitment

We expect all individuals who are involved in implementing VVOB projects and programmes to ensure that professional and personal conduct is consistent with VVOB's values and standards, and that all individuals who are involved in implementing VVOB projects and programmes demonstrate a high level of professionalism and loyalty to VVOB, its vision, mission and strategic and operational objectives. Therefore, we must:

- Deliver on the duties of our position in an ethical and professional manner and take responsibility for carrying out the duties of our position to the best of our abilities;
- Never work under the influence of alcohol or drugs, or be in possession of, illegal substances on VVOB premises, accommodation or during working hours;
- Keep in mind the longer-term objectives of VVOB and the strategic and operational partners when managing short- and medium-term activities and operations;
- Update our knowledge and skills and develop our professional competencies to maintain excellent standards and use this professional expertise constructively for the benefit of VVOB, its programmes and strategic and operational partners;
- Ensure to have correct (reliable, complete, detailed and substantiated) information for decision-making purposes.

What if?

Q "I don't work in finance or accounting. Is "financial integrity" my responsibility?"

A Yes. Accuracy in recordkeeping is not the job of one team or one department. It is a responsibility we all share. From preparing and monitoring budgets, financial record keeping to understanding and using expense reports... all our everyday transactions must be accurate, complete and properly recorded.

3.3.4 Accountability and transparency

We expect all individuals who are involved in implementing VVOB projects and programmes to take responsibility for one's actions, decisions and their consequences. Therefore, we must:

- Ensure that all VVOB assets and human, financial and material resources entrusted to us are used in a responsible and optimal manner for the benefit of VVOB and the programme and project objectives;
- Record all transactions and prepare accurate and complete records, in accordance with established procedures;
- Not conduct or authorise facilitation payments or bribery;
- Ensure that VVOB IT equipment, software or e-mail and social media platforms are not being used to engage in activity that is illegal under local or international law or that encourages conduct that would constitute a criminal offence. This includes any material that intimidates or harasses any group based on protected characteristics, or encourages extremism;
- Never use VVOB IT equipment to view, download, create, distribute or save in any format inappropriate or abusive material including but not limited to pornography or depictions of child abuse;
- Declare any financial, personal or family (or close intimate relationship) interest in matters of official business which may impact on the work of VVOB;
- Not be involved in awarding benefits, contracts for goods or services, employment or promotion within VVOB, to any person with whom the employee has a financial, personal, family (or close intimate relationship) interest;
- Not accept significant gifts or any remuneration from governments, communities with whom we work, donors, suppliers and other persons which have been offered to the employee as a result of our work with VVOB, except in cases when it is culturally inappropriate to decline. In case of the latter, the acceptance of a gift should always be reported to the management team. In no case may gifts influence or give the impression of influencing decision-making of the individuals who are involved in implementing VVOB projects and programmes in performing her or his job.

4 Roles and structure for organisation-wide culture of integrity

Within VVOB we have identified the following roles and structure to nurture and maintain an organisation-wide culture of integrity:

4.1 Focal person integrity

Within VVOB headquarters a focal person integrity has been appointed. This person will act as an organisation-wide integrity advisor and complaints manager:

- Integrity advisor (preventive role): the focal point integrity acts as an integrity advisor and takes the lead in the development, implementation and evaluation of the VVOB integrity policy, VVOB's integrity action plan and integrity-related tools, trainings and learning loops. The focal point integrity also advises the colleagues and managers on the effective interpretation and implementation of the VVOB integrity policy and provides a forum for the exchange of views, experiences and best-practice approaches between different country offices.
- Complaints manager (reactive role): the focal person integrity takes up the role of complaints manager and acts as an internal point of contact to receive and follow up on complaints of (suspected) integrity violations and is responsible for the internal and external communication on integrity violations.

The focal point integrity can be contacted at integrity@vvoob.org.

4.2 Integrity committee

The VVOB integrity committee is an internal committee that consists of the VVOB directors, the focal person integrity, as well as the director of Fiabel, the Belgian federation of institutional actors. The mandate of this integrity committee is to guide VVOB in the area of integrity.

The committee will discuss complex ethical dilemmas and situations from our work practice and will provide internal advice, procedures and measures on ethic and integrity issues within VVOB. A distinction is made between:

- General thematic meetings (every six months) to discuss general integrity issues in finance, HR, communication, donor diversification and programme operations. For the general thematic meetings other VVOB colleagues can be invited to join, depending on the agenda of the meeting;
- Ad hoc meetings (when needed) to discuss urgent complex ethical dilemmas and formulate recommendations.

The working group will also function as a sounding board and sparring partner for the focal point integrity in further developing, implementing and supporting VVOB's overall integrity policy.

4.3 Confidential counsellors

VVOB wants to ensure that we offer a safe and pleasant working environment for all staff, interns, volunteers and partners. Any form of undesirable conduct such as sexual harassment, violence, intimidation, aggression, bullying or other breaches of our codes of conduct will not be tolerated.

Within each VVOB country office a confidential counsellor is / will be appointed who will serve as a contact person for anyone who has been confronted with or suspects, directly or indirectly, breaches of VVOB's codes of conduct, or has questions pertaining to integrity.

You can contact the confidential counsellors for information, advice and support, and discuss with them confidential matters. The confidential counsellor must always maintain strict confidentiality in respect of all information relating to a complaint or an intended complaint about inappropriate behaviour that comes to his/her knowledge. This duty of confidentiality does not apply with regards to any of his/her fellow confidential counsellors, a confidential physician (if appropriate), or any authorised officer(s) of the police or the judicial authorities. Information shared with the confidential counsellors remains in all cases confidential, except when explicit permission is given by the person filing the complaint to mediate to either reach a solution or speed up a complaint process. Talking to confidential counsellors may serve various purposes:

- First, it provides the opportunity to be heard or ask questions and share concerns in a safe environment with someone who knows the organisation and VVOB's integrity policy and procedures;
- By talking about a case and exchanging information and ideas, more clarity can be given about the specific case you may be struggling with: is it a real violation of VVOB's codes of conduct, is it an ethical dilemma, a work-related conflict, or maybe something else?
- It provides support in the process of deciding whether it is desirable and/or necessary to take further steps and if so, to clarify what these steps can be. The confidential counsellor will take up a coaching or mentoring role in this decision-making process;
- When you decide to take further steps, the confidential counsellor will refer you. Depending on the situation and case, reference may be made to:
 - The formal reporting channel of breaches of VVOB's codes of conduct;
 - The focal person integrity in case the colleague is struggling with an ethical dilemma;
 - The programme manager, HR manager or HR advisor in case of a workplace conflict;
 - The programme manager, HR manager or HR advisor in case of questions about integrity within HR areas such as training, well-being, evaluation and functioning, employment status and careers;
 - To the programme manager or financial manager in case of questions about financial integrity.

4.4 Health and safety advisor for psychosocial aspects: IDEWE

In case you are experiencing psychological and/or physical complaints as a result of your working conditions, or if you would like to have the risks analysed, either formally or informally, you can contact the Belgium-based external health and safety advisor for psychosocial aspects: IDEWE. IDEWE can advise on preventive measures and can offer informal and formal psychosocial interventions for work-related psychosocial aspects.

Contact information:

IDEWE Brussels
Tel: 0032 (0)2 237 33 24
E-mail: Brussel@idewe.be

Although their website is only available in Dutch and French, advice is given in English as well.

4.5 Ethical commission donor check

VVOB aims to improve education systems in a sustainable way. We are convinced that we have a responsibility towards societies that goes beyond our own programmes. Hence, the sources of funding need to be in line with the ethical standards of VVOB.

Each potential financial partner/donor is analysed according to the exclusion list of the European Development Finance Institutions (EDFI). In case all criteria are assessed with positive result, VVOB is allowed to start negotiations with the potential financial partner/donor. If one or more criteria are not clear from the initial assessment, the case is discussed by the 'ethical commission'. This ethical commission consists of the general director, the programme director and 2 assigned members of the Board of Directors. The ethical commission has the mandate to decide whether VVOB can move forward (or not) with the potential financial partner/donor. The ethical commission reports to the Board of Directors.

5 Ethical dilemmas

As unpleasant as it might be, it is likely that within the work of VVOB you may be confronted with ethical dilemmas. An ethical dilemma is a conflict between alternative options for action where, no matter what you do, an ethical principle or value will be compromised. In such a situation, the following steps might guide you in deciding how to act or react in such a situation:

1. Identify the ethical dilemma / problem;
2. List possible solutions (what can I do?) and any obstacles to resolving the problem;
3. If appropriate, seek input of others;
4. Determine the best approach (what should you do?):
 - a. Is it consistent with VVOB's codes of conduct or any applicable law or regulation?
 - b. Would the approach subject you or VVOB to embarrassment?
 - c. How would your approach be perceived by others, if published in the newspaper?
 - d. Would you be comfortable with the example it sets for future decisions?
5. If the path is not clear: ask for guidance and voice your concerns!

What if?  Q "May I accept a meal or a gift from a partner VVOB is working with?"

In most circumstances, modest and infrequent meals or gifts may be accepted. However, whenever a partner pays for a meal or offers you a gift, always consider the specific circumstances and whether your impartiality could be compromised or appear to others to be compromised. Talk with your manager if you are unsure about whether to accept or not.

What if?  Q "There is a conflict between what's in our Code and the laws in the country where I work. I am not sure what to do."

The best approach is to follow the stricter requirement. If that is unclear, seek guidance from your managers, the confidential counsellors or the focal person integrity.

6 Addressing and reporting a violation of VVOB's codes of conduct

6.1 Obligation of all of us

It is the responsibility of all of us to report any violations or suspected violations of our codes of conduct or events that could lead to any such violations. Any person's failure to report any such acts or transactions following their discovery shall be grounds for disciplinary action.

If you feel VVOB's codes of conduct are violated, if our standards have not been met, if you need access to relevant policies related to integrity issues, or if you have any questions regarding integrity and ethics within VVOB, please ask for guidance or voice your concerns by contacting your supervisor, manager or the confidential counsellor in your country, or the focal person integrity at head office.

So, remember: Act if you see an integrity issue. Ask if you're not sure.

What if?  Q "I suspect—but am not certain—that someone is violating our Code. Should I keep my concerns to myself?"

No. If you suspect a violation, say something. It is better to raise a potential problem than to wait and risk harm to others or to the organisation. If you want, you can first contact a confidential counsellor to talk about your concerns. Reporting "in good faith" means you are coming forward honestly with information that you believe to be true, even if, after investigation, it turns out that you were mistaken.

6.2 Reporting channels

VVOB encourages an open-door policy and suggest that you share your questions, concerns, suggestions or complaints related to integrity issues with someone who can address them properly. In most cases, VVOB's managers are in a good position to address an area of concern.

What if?

Q "One of my colleagues emailed an inappropriate joke to me and some other colleagues. I find it offensive, but I do not know if I should approach my colleague with my concern. What should I do?"

A We each have an obligation to ensure that VVOB is a great place to work, and offensive behaviour such as this is not acceptable. You can approach your colleague and say that you are offended by the email. If you feel uncomfortable speaking directly to your colleague, contact your manager, confidential counsellor or focal person integrity.

When a colleague is not satisfied or comfortable with following the open-door approach, he or she can contact the confidential counsellor of the country office to seek further advice, or can contact the focal person integrity directly to report a violation of VVOB's codes of conduct at integrity@vvo.org.

What if?

Q "Culturally, it is not common to report a concern about someone that is in a leadership position. What should I do?"

A It is important to say something about your concerns. VVOB respects its diverse workforce, considers various cultural norms when looking into concerns and takes all appropriate actions to protect the identity of the person who is sharing the information, as well as the information that is being shared.

6.3 How to report a (suspected) violation

VVOB colleagues may submit complaints concerning suspected violations of our Codes of Conduct to:

- The programme manager;
- The programme director or general director;
- The focal person integrity (integrity@vvo.org)

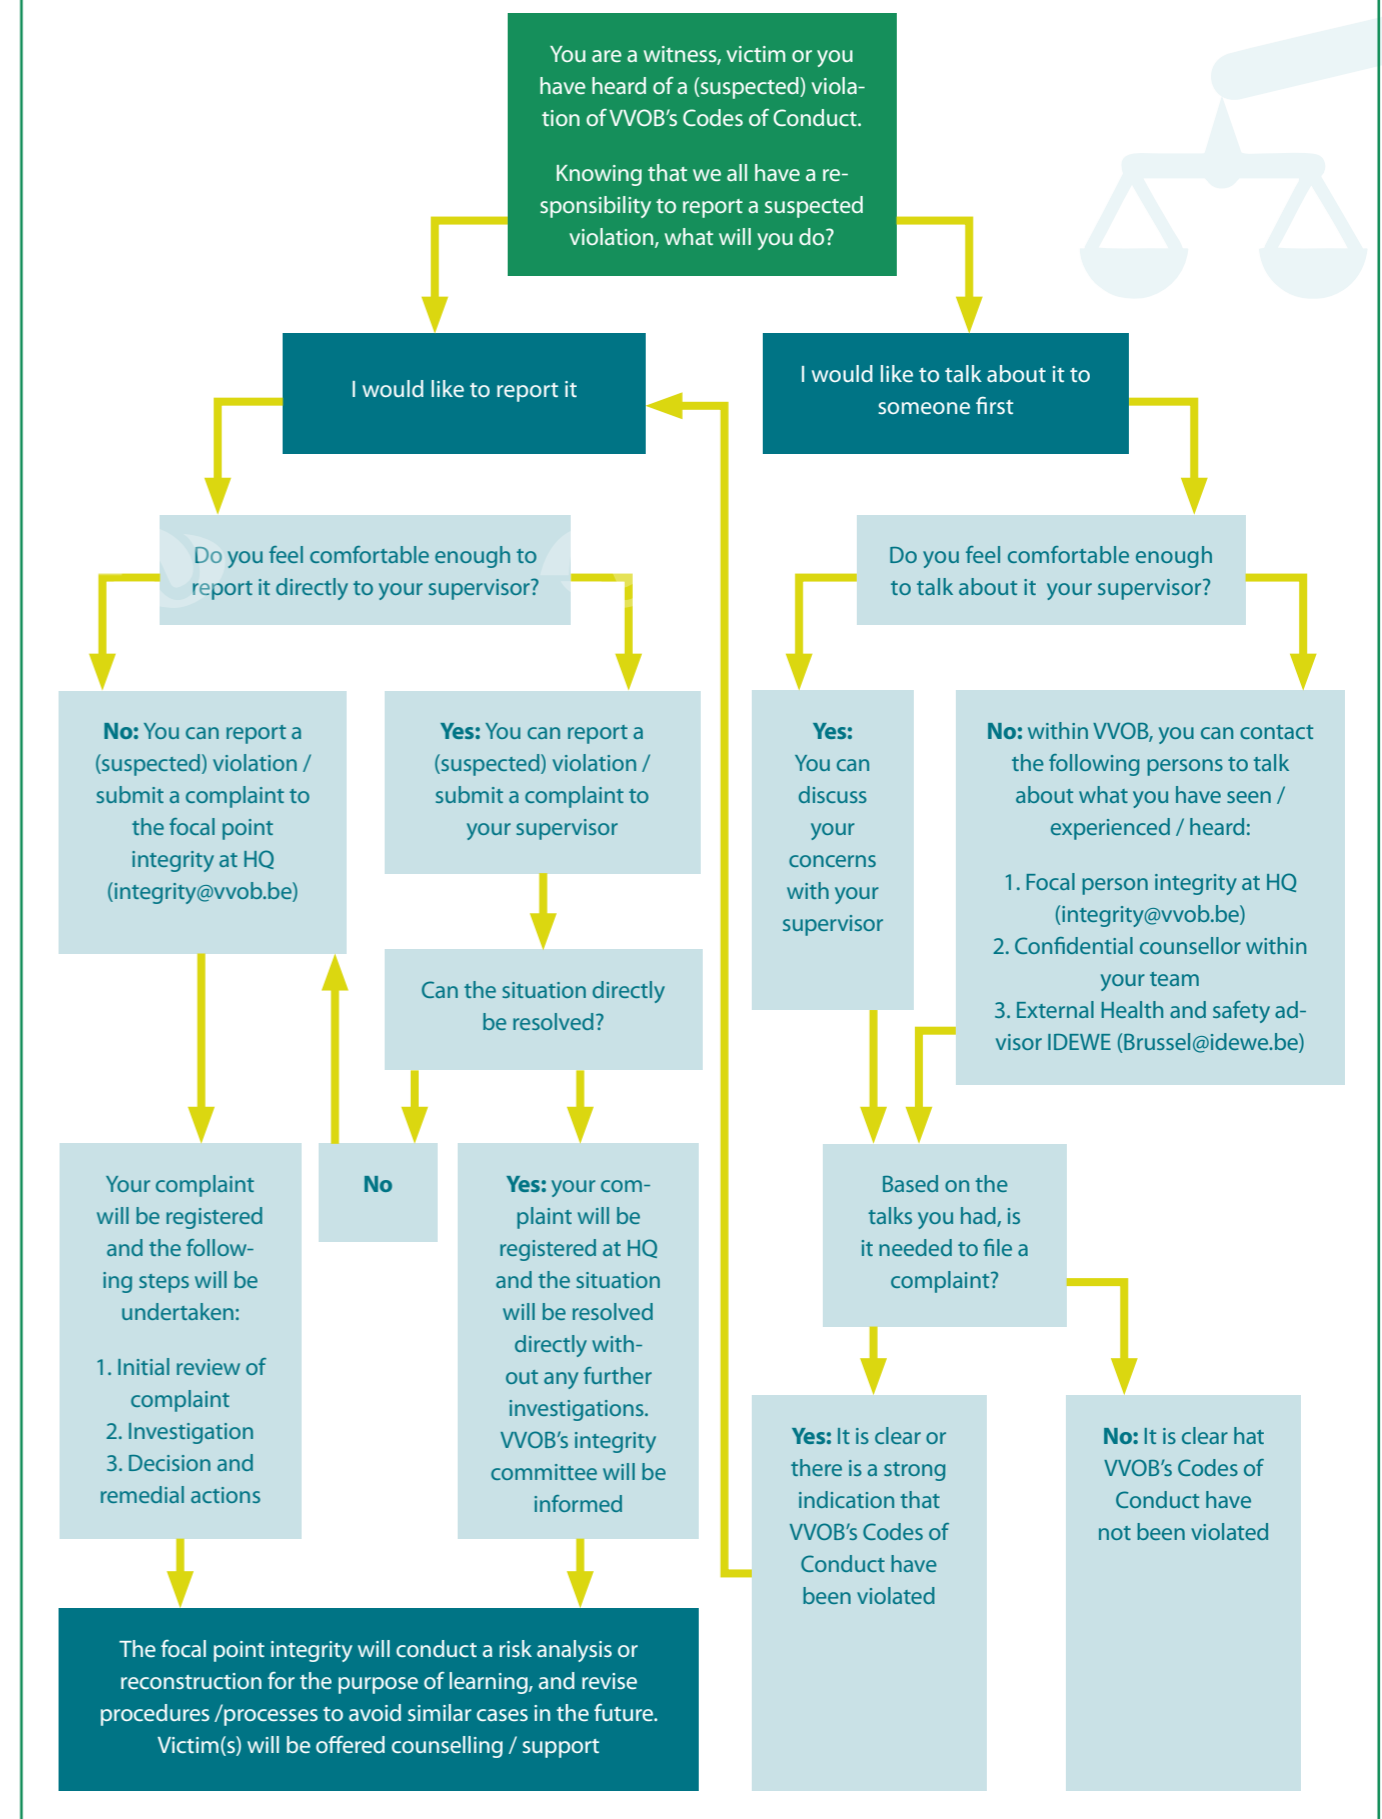

Every complaint should identify the code provision(s) that were allegedly violated and describe in as much detail as possible the factual basis for the complaint.

To enable a fair and timely resolution, a complaint must typically be submitted within 180 days after the alleged violation occurred. Complaints submitted more than 180 days after the alleged violation occurred will be considered at the sole discretion of VVOB's integrity committee.

VVOB ensures that people can raise good faith concerns about actual or suspected violations without fear of reprisal or being threatened by doing so. Anyone filing a complaint must be acting in good faith and have reasonable grounds for believing the information disclosed indicates a violation.

All concerns raised by the employee will be treated promptly, fairly and discretely. No one will be disadvantaged or victimised for raising good faith concerns.

ACT if you see an integrity issue, ASK if you are not sure

6.4 Handling of a reported (suspected) violation

All reported complaints will be centrally managed by the focal person integrity. This means that all programme managers and the directors are required to notify the focal person integrity of all suspected violations which are reported to them.

Complaints and questions are treated with the utmost confidentiality. However, they may not be notified anonymously. We must be able to contact the complainant in order to obtain possible additional information.

6.4.1 Initial review

The focal person integrity will review the complaint. A complaint usually will not be pursued if it lacks sufficient factual allegations to conduct a preliminary inquiry, or if the focal person integrity has good reason to believe it was made in bad faith. If there are sufficient grounds for further follow-up, an inquiry will be conducted.

The focal person integrity will notify the complainant, the programme manager and the directors about the decision in writing via email.

6.4.2 Investigation

An investigation will be conducted for the purpose of determining whether VVOB must undertake remedial actions. The focal person integrity formulates a proposal for this investigation including the steps to be taken, timing, budget and persons involved. This proposal will be shared with VVOB's integrity committee for their approval.

The investigation may include the following steps:

- Interviewing and hearing the complainant (if any), the subject, and, at the designated member(s)' sole discretion, relevant witnesses identified by either party.
- Reviewing any documents provided by the complainant, the subject and/or other witnesses.
- Triage of severity, taking into consideration the magnitude of harm, crime status (to capture whether the alleged conduct may constitute a crime in the respective national or international legislation), who is the survivor (e.g. extra vulnerable person or persons, or not), who is the perpetrator (one or more persons, management staff or not, etc), reputational impact...
- In case it is necessary, and in consultation with VVOB's integrity committee, consulting with subject matter experts;
- In case it is necessary, and in consultation with VVOB's integrity committee, taking any other steps appropriate to aid in determining whether the complaint should be pursued further.

The investigation is subject to the following general principles:

- Transparency;
- Objectivity;
- The suspect is presumed to be innocent until allegations are proved to be true;
- The suspect is informed of the allegations (however protecting the anonymity of the victim) and given an opportunity to explain his or her version of events.

6.4.3 Decision and remedial sanctions

After considering all information gathered during the inquiry, the focal person integrity will provide a written report to VVOB's integrity committee and all supporting materials, including minutes of any interviews conducted; all documents collected; and minutes or copies of any oral or written reports by any subject matter expert(s).

VVOB's integrity committee will review the report and other materials submitted and will determine if the complaint violates VVOB's codes of conduct. If this is the case, the integrity committee recommends what remediation to pursue and legal steps to take. Without limitation, possible remedial sanctions may include:

- Issuing a warning letter;
- Counselling;
- Suspension from VVOB for a specified time;
- Dismissal without notice or payment in lieu of notice.

In case of (suspected) criminal acts, a police report will be filed, and the subject will be immediately suspended.

The integrity committee will notify the complainant, subject and programme manager in writing of the decision.

If needed, VVOB provides victim counselling and support.

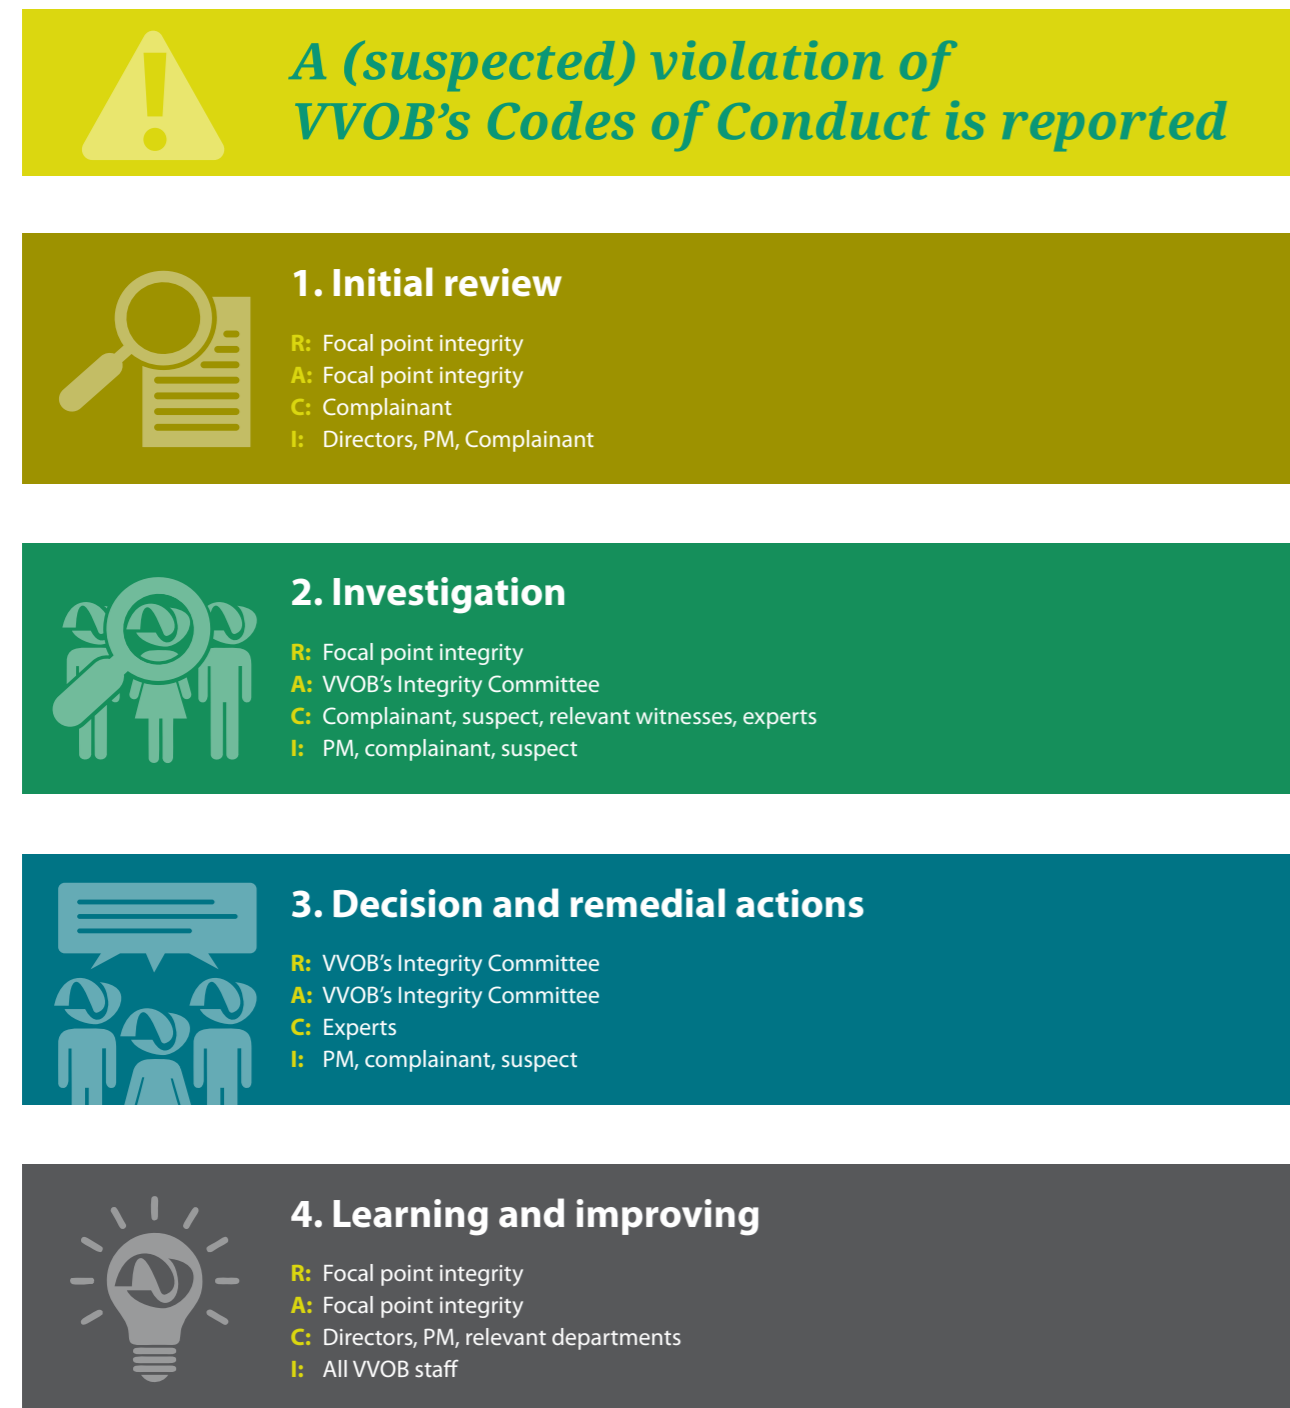

If VVOB's integrity committee determines that the complaint does not violate our codes of conduct, no further steps will be taken and the subject, the complainant and the programme manager will be notified of the decision.

VVOB will endeavour to complete the preliminary inquiry within 2 months after the initial review of the complaint.

Irrespective of the outcome of the investigation, the focal point integrity will conduct a risk analysis or a reconstruction of what happened in order to learn from this and, if necessary, revise processes and procedures in order to avoid similar cases in the future.

In summary, the steps taken when a (suspected) violation of VVOB's Codes of Conduct is reported via the programme manager, programme director, general director or focal point integrity, are:

R= Responsible, A=Accountable, C=Consulted, I=Informed

Internal communication, dialogue and training

Awareness rising on integrity within VVOB is important to us, since it contributes to the debate about what ethical behaviour means to us in practice, what we can expect from each other and what we can do to prevent and combat unethical behaviour within our organisation.

As described above, we encourage an open-door policy and open communication on integrity issues and ethical dilemmas. VVOB takes appropriate action to ensure that the content and understanding of the principles of the Codes of Conduct and the procedures for complaint handling and whistleblowing are communicated to all individuals who are involved in implementing VVOB projects and programmes.

We do this through:

- Putting integrity on the agenda of our induction programmes, going through VVOB's Codes of Conduct and complaints procedure with new colleagues;
- Organising general information sessions on our integrity policy, with special attention to our Codes of Conduct and complaint/reporting procedure;
- Developing internal communication materials (pocket guide, brochure) of our integrity policy, Codes of Conduct and complaint/reporting procedure;
- Organising team workshops on VVOB's Codes of Conduct and trainings on ethical dilemmas and ethical decision-making;
- Developing job profiles for confidential counsellors, appointing them, setting up a peer learning group and providing training to the confident counsellors;
- Organising trainings on financial integrity (e.g.; corruption prevention trainings, sharing knowledge and good practices on financial integrity within VVOB);
- Communicating internally and externally (annual report) on integrity issues we are confronted with, including lessons learned and remedial actions taken;
 - Annually the focal point integrity will draft an integrity progress report to update on our efforts and challenges related to integrity with VVOB which will be shared with all colleagues worldwide;
 - Annually, the general director will report to the Board of Directors about the number and nature of integrity complaints and cases reported and handled;
 - We report about the number of integrity complaints and cases reported and handled in our annual report.
